'An incisive and foundational work, offering wide-ranging analyses of the complex role of intellectual property rights (IPRs) in economic development and human capital formation. Combining history, law, and political economy, the contributions in this volume collectively are analytic, informative, and compelling.'

– Ruth L. Okediji, Harvard Law School, US

Financial Services Law and Distributed Ledger Technology

Regulating Cryptoassets and Decentralised Finance

Brendan McGurk, Monckton Chambers, London, UK and Stefan Reichenbach, Market Infrastructure and Information Services Executive

This incisive book examines the extent to which existing UK financial service regulations can be applied to digital assets and decentralised financial services provided by distributed networks. Brendan McGurk and Stefan Reichenbach consider the wider legal issues beyond regulatory enforcement, attributable to the use of distributed ledger technology based financial services.

EU Banking and Financial Regulation

Jean-Baptiste Poulle, Arut Kannan, Nicolas Spitz, Sandra Kahn, Spitz Poulle Kannan and Anastasia Sotiropoulou, University of New Orleans, France

EU Banking and Financial Regulation presents a comprehensive and systematic overview of the major directives and regulations which currently govern the EU's banking and finance industries. Offering a depiction of the main EU rules, this timely book not only addresses the various banking and financial legislations relating to EU supervisors, banks and financial markets, but also considers more peripheral issues such as anti-money laundering, whilst referring to important case law.

The Model Law Approach to International Commercial Arbitration

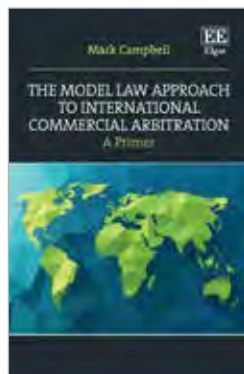

A Primer

Mark Campbell, University of Bristol Law School, UK

'This book introduces and explains essential features of international arbitration such as minimal court interference, separability, party autonomy, equal treatment, and impartiality. The book is well constructed and easy to read, readers will come away with a clear understanding of arbitration under the Model Law regime - providing a good basis for further study of local differences.'

Property, Power and Human Rights

Lived Universalism In and Through the Margins

Laura Dehaibi, Laval University, Canada

'In this book, Professor Dehaibi provides an invaluable contribution to the literatures of both property and international human rights. By grounding the human right to property in the lived human experience of social participation, particularly among those at the margins, she simultaneously reaffirms property's importance while extending our understanding of the divergent contexts that give the right its meaning.'

ESG Rating Agencies and Financial Regulation

A Signalling Theory Approach

Daniel Cash, Aston University, UK

'Credit rating agencies have taken criticism for misrepresenting risk, especially in relation to the 2008 global financial crisis. ESG ratings agencies have also occasionally underdelivered on their aim of providing useful information to investors. With issues such as climate change becoming front and center, it is refreshing to see this book emerge from Daniel Cash, one of the more thoughtful writers working on the connection between ESG and rating agencies.'

Intellectual Property Rights in Times of Crisis

Edited by Jens Schovsbo, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

'If the COVID pandemic had a silver lining, it's that it led us to reconsider exclusive rights as the principal mechanism for encouraging innovation. This book is a brilliant contribution to that analysis. In its pages, scholars from around the globe discuss flexibilities in the current IP regime and offer new approaches, both inside and outside that system, to improve access.'

Research Handbook on Legal Evolution

Edited by Wojciech Załuski, Jagiellonian University, Poland, Sacha Bourgeois-Gironde, Université Paris 2 Panthéon-Assas, France and University of Haifa, Israel and Adam Dyrda, Jagiellonian University, Krakow, Poland

'Perhaps the four most significant scientific advancements in history are heliocentricity, the theories of relativity, quantum mechanics, and of course evolution. Evolution as both a science and a metaphor has had an enormous impact not just on scientific fields like genetics, but the social sciences as well. This volume demonstrates the enormous impact of evolutionary theory on one critically important social science—the study of law and legal systems. The original contributions are not meant as a history of accomplishments but rather as an impetus for future work, a goal which I suspect the volume will fulfill admirably.'

Research Handbook on Marine Insurance Law

Edited by Özlem Gürses, King's College London, UK

'Marine insurance law is probably one of the most interesting areas of commercial law. It is a subject comprising doctrines that are unique to this branch of commercial law (e.g. doctrine of good faith, insurable interest). This Research Handbook provides a great forum for leading academics and practitioners to comment on novel legal issues arising as a result of the introduction of emerging technologies in insurance practice, changes adopted by policy makers and recent judicial interventions. All contributions are thought provoking and enlightening. The book is an essential reading for anyone who has a genuine interest in the subject.'

The Right to a Healthy Environment in and Beyond the Anthropocene

A European Perspective

Edited by Hendrik Schoukens, University of Ghent and Lawyer at the Brussels Bar and Farah Bouquelle, University of Ghent, Belgium

'This new book makes a timely, much needed and valuable contribution to clarifying the nature and content of the right to a healthy environment. Leading lawyers and judges in Europe illuminate and elucidate the many facets of the right and the correlative duties. Their mapping of the distinctive features of the right will be invaluable for those who seek guidance in this under-explored territory of the law.'

Predictability in Oil and Gas Investment Agreements

Balancing Interests for a Stable Investment Environment

Stanislava Nedeva, Cardiff University, UK

This rigorous book explores the opposing investor-state relationship and argues that a stable investment environment is achieved when the rights of both parties are recognised and balanced. Stanislava Nedeva examines how both certainty and predictability can be achieved in oil and gas investment agreements and identifies the ways in which political risks to contractual stability and indirect expropriation can be mitigated.

Revisiting Judicial Politics in the European Union

Edited by Mark Dawson, Hertie School, Germany, Bruno De Witte, Maastricht University, the Netherlands and Elise Muir, KU Leuven, Belgium

'This work by Dawson, De Witte and Muir is very welcome, and a "must-have" for students and scholars of EU law. Focusing on the perennially relevant theme of judicial politics, the volume features a stellar line-up of contributors addressing many different dimensions of judicial activism, and the engagement of judicial decision-making with politics in the European Union. The interaction with national courts and the ECHR also figure in several chapters, as do the topical issue areas of migration and asylum, free movement, discrimination, judicial independence, and scientific expertise.'

Treaties in Parliaments and Courts

The Two Other Voices

Felix Lange, University of Cologne, Germany

'The making and implementation of treaties are often viewed as exclusively falling within the domain of the executive's foreign relations prerogatives. In his exciting new book, Lange reminds us of the limits to this approach and demonstrates the need to look at domestic parliaments and courts' hold of the making and life of treaties. In doing so, Lange provides the reader with a novel and insightful way to look at the relations between international and domestic law.'
