Why publish with Elgar?

A unique publishing experience

As an independent press, Edward Elgar Publishing offers a uniquely responsive service tailored to each project.

From initial commissioning, through to marketing the finished book, our dedicated teams work closely with our authors – whether newly published or well established – to keep them involved and informed.

We are dedicated to reducing the impact of our publishing on the environment and are proud to have signed up to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact. We also work in partnership with organisations such as EIFL and GOALI to enable access to knowledge in developing and transition economy countries.

Your work will be part of a broad, diverse and inclusive list which reflects the wide range of research and perspectives within the subject areas we publish.

In good company

Your book will sit in good company – many of our authors are recognised as leading scholars and professionals in their fields. Numbered amongst them are several Nobel Laureates. Many of our books have won prestigious awards and consistently receive global acclaim for their originality, quality and impact.

Effective and efficient decision-making

We use peer-review by subject specialists to ensure that our research monographs meet a high standard of scholarship. We respond quickly to proposal submissions and aim to complete our assessments within a few weeks of receipt. Your dedicated Commissioning Editor will keep you fully informed throughout the process.

Production quality

Our experienced production team will produce a book you will be proud of. We use UK based copy-editors to ensure our manuscripts are of optimum quality and are finished to the very highest standard. Your Desk Editor will be in close liaison during the processing and production stages, involving you in important decisions such as book cover design.

International dissemination & marketing

We work with academics, booksellers, professionals and libraries around the globe, reaching over 140 countries.

From e-catalogues and conferences to our eBook platform, email campaigns and social media channels, information on your book will be disseminated widely by our international marketing team. Our well-established global reputation will get your book noticed and we will ensure it is readily available across the world.

We recognise the importance of getting your work cited. To maximise visibility we endeavour to get our books indexed in Scopus and Clarivate's Web of Science.

Society partners & international organisations

Edward Elgar Publishing enjoys successful collaboration with a number of society partners including the Asian Development Bank, United Nations International Development Organization and the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law.

Our partners choose us for our reliable and responsible service, the majority publishing with us over many years, benefiting from the continuity of service.

TEXTBOOK

Advanced Introduction to Indigenous Human Rights

Dinah L. Shelton, The George Washington University Law School, US and Federico Guzmán Duque, Lawyer of Human Rights and previously Universidad de los Andes in Bogotá, Colombia

'Advanced Introduction to Indigenous Human Rights is an important contribution to the expanding literature on the internationally-recognized rights of indigenous peoples. It thoughtfully synthesizes diverse sources to provide a coherent overview of the human rights themes and standards in this dynamic area of international law, and it does so in a way that is accessible to the non-specialist. This book is an essential reference for all those interested in the rights of indigenous peoples or human rights more generally.'

When Military Obedience and Restrictions on War Powers Collide

A Case For Reform

Ellen Nohle, Legal Advisor, Diplomat and J.S.D. graduate of Yale Law School, US

'This book confronts a profound legal dilemma: As the law exists today, a soldier's legal duty to obey military orders can come into conflict with international and domestic law restrictions on waging war, putting the soldier in an impossible position. No one has addressed this profound dilemma as clearly and effectively as Ellen Nohle does here. This book is a must-read for anyone interested in the law governing war.'

Research Handbook on Plea Bargaining and Criminal Justice

Edited by Máximo Langer, UCLA School of Law, US, Mike McConville, University of Nottingham, UK and The Chinese University of Hong Kong and Luke Marsh, The Chinese University of Hong Kong and Door Tenant at 25 Bedford Row, London, UK

'The full adjudicative process is everywhere in decline, replaced by various forms of negotiated or bargained justice. Langer, McConville and Marsh subject these new forms of justice to theoretical analysis from a variety of perspectives and offer thoughtful reflections about their likely future. The Research Handbook contains a wealth of new insights and will be of great interest to all those who are interested in contemporary criminal procedure.'

Exchange of Information in the EU

Taxpayers' Rights, Transparency and Effectiveness

Edited by Marina Serrat Romani, University of Barcelona, Spain, Jasper Korving, Maastricht University and Deloitte Belastingadviseurs BV and Mariolina Eliantonio, Maastricht University, the Netherlands

'This book is a very important contribution to the analysis of the development of exchange of information within the EU and notably the growing importance of the granting of taxpayers' rights within this context. The authors also analyze the most recent achievements of exchange of information, not only regarding exchange of information upon request, spontaneous or automatic, but in new areas such as in the field of cryptocurrencies and digital platforms. In this context, it can be said that the EU has taken the lead in the implementation of new and wide ranging rules in the area of exchange of information.'

Competition and Sustainability

Economic Policy and Options for Reform in Antitrust and Competition Law

Justus Haucap, Anja Rösner, Rupprecht Podszun and Tristan Rohner, Heinrich-Heine-Universität Düsseldorf, Germany

'This book explores a wide range of ideas and policy options regarding the relationship between sustainability and competition policy. One doesn't need to agree with them all to welcome this addition to the literature. Questions tackled include; How much can be done within the existing framework? How much does this need to change? Should we focus sharply on environmental sustainability/ climate change or on wider sustainable development goals? Some ideas are music to my ears, notably that in a social- ecological market economy the handling of the planet, of other people, or of flora & fauna, can be factors relevant to competition.'

Non-Human Rights

Critical Perspectives

Edited by Alexis Alvarez-Nakagawa, Queen Mary University of London and Costas Douzinas, Birkbeck, University of London, UK

'How and why do non-human rights reproduce and entrench the human exceptionalism they are supposed to challenge? From different perspectives and with different accents, this incisive set of essays explores how animals, nature, and robots are excluded from humanity in the very process of being included as rights-holders, while also critically probing the notion of humanity that would define what counts, residually, as non-human. The volume will be an essential companion to scholarly research for which the "non-human" is a cypher of our times and the problems it must come to terms with.'

Research Methods in Human Rights

A Handbook: Second Edition

Edited by Bård A. Andreassen, University of Oslo, Norway, Claire Methven O'Brien, University of Dundee and University of Strathclyde, UK and Hans-Otto Sano, Danish Institute for Human Rights, Denmark

'This book highlights the rapid development in Human Rights research methods: the first edition was published in 2017, and now the editors have found it valuable not only to update but also to revise most of the chapters. The first edition quickly became the go-to resource for understanding human rights research methodology. The new edition adds further depth to the evolution of human rights research methodology and will therefore contribute significantly to the consolidation of insights of scholars and students working in the field.'

Research Handbook on Intellectual Property Rights and Arbitration

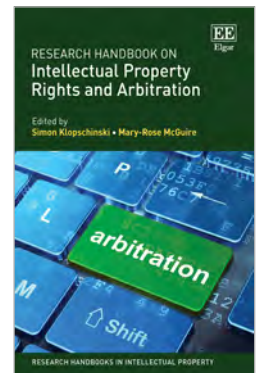

Edited by Simon Klopschinski, rospatt Intellectual Property Lawyers, Düsseldorf and Mary-Rose McGuire, University of Osnabrück, Germany

'Intellectual property rights relate to intangible, often technology linked subjects, generate erga omnes effects, and are territorially limited despite their ubiquity, and in the case of patents, trademarks and designs, are the result of official actions. Resolving intellectual property rights disputes in courts is challenging particularly when issues of applicable law and jurisdiction are at stake. This Research Handbook is a true treasure trove of reliable advice and information on how to master those challenges by choosing arbitration as an attractive and efficient alternative.'

The European Insolvency Regulation and Implementing Legislations

A Commentary

Edited by Gilles Cuniberti, University of Luxembourg and Antonio Leandro, University of Bari Aldo Moro, Italy

'This new Commentary on the European Insolvency Regulation (EIR) provides a helpful introduction, a deep analysis of its provisions in the light of EU and national case law, together with an annex gathering the implementing legislations of many EU countries. Its contributors, mainly scholars of different jurisdictions, approach the provisions of the EIR with a marked and remarkable private international law perspective on the issues of jurisdiction, applicable law, recognition, and cooperation that arise from EU cross-border insolvency proceedings. This Commentary is a much-welcomed resource for practitioners, court judges and scholars dealing with EU cross-border insolvency and restructuring issues.'

Research Handbook on Family Property and the Law

Edited by Margaret Briggs, University of Otago, New Zealand and Andy Hayward, Durham University, UK

'This outstanding book brings together different perspectives on family property: culture, indigeneity, religion, sexuality, feminism, history, policy development, as well as classic legal analysis. The team of authors from around the world and their scholarship mean that the book fills many gaps and brings fresh insights. I recommend it most highly.'

AVAILABLE IN PAPERBACK Technology and Security for Lawyers and Other Professionals

The Basics and Beyond

Dr W. Kuan Hon, Of Counsel, Dentons, UK and an Editor, Encyclopedia of Data Protection and Privacy

'Kuan's encyclopedic knowledge of all things legal and technological never failed to impress me. I would challenge anyone to find a lawyer as conversant in technology and data privacy as Kuan... If technology leaves you baffled, then don't worry – that's what this book is for. And if, like me, you have a greater understanding of technology, I can promise you this book will prove an invaluable reference.'

Research Handbook on Intellectual Property Rights and Inclusivity

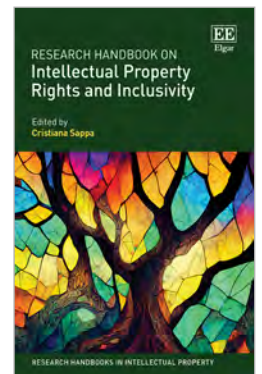

Edited by Cristiana Sappa, IESEG School of Management, Lille, France

'How can inclusivity, a key condition for well-being and social development, be achieved in enforcing Intellectual property, which typically creates exclusive rights? This book introduces a new and most welcome perspective, still largely unexplored, to understand the role of intellectual property in our societies.'

Contextualising Legal Research

A Methodological Guide

Sanne Taekema, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands, and University of Bergen, Norway and Wibren van der Burg, Erasmus University Rotterdam, the Netherlands

'Legal scholars often struggle to articulate the methodological stakes and aims of their research. This book offers an indispensable guide to help meet that challenge. It is a bold new statement of the need for dialogue between legal research and work in other disciplines, including empirical methods and the humanities.'

The Rule of Law Under Threat

Eroding Institutions and European Remedies

Edited by Robert Böttner and the late, Hermann-Josef Blanke, formerly, University of Erfurt, Germany

'This is a very current and well-organised volume providing a systematic analysis of the rule of law in the EU by several excellent continental scholars. The book, which is one of the few interdisciplinary studies on the EU rule of law, provides a balanced and informative account blending rich conceptual and empirical insights from recent case studies. The role of institutions, especially courts, and commonly shared principles such as mutual trust and homogeneity feature prominently in this book as well as narratives on challenges to the rule of law. Overall this is an important addition to the discourse on the rule of law in Europe as a contested concept.'
