Why publish with Elgar?

A unique publishing experience

As an independent press, Edward Elgar Publishing offers a uniquely responsive service tailored to each project.

From initial commissioning, through to marketing the finished book, our dedicated teams work closely with our authors – whether newly published or well established – to keep them involved and informed.

We are dedicated to reducing the impact of our publishing on the environment and are proud to have signed up to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact. We also work in partnership with organisations such as EIFL and GOALI to enable access to knowledge in developing and transition economy countries.

Your work will be part of a broad, diverse and inclusive list which reflects the wide range of research and perspectives within the subject areas we publish.

In good company

Your book will sit in good company – many of our authors are recognised as leading scholars and professionals in their fields. Numbered amongst them are several Nobel Laureates. Many of our books have won prestigious awards and consistently receive global acclaim for their originality, quality and impact.

Effective and efficient decision-making

We use peer-review by subject specialists to ensure that our research monographs meet a high standard of scholarship. We respond quickly to proposal submissions and aim to complete our assessments within a few weeks of receipt. Your dedicated Commissioning Editor will keep you fully informed throughout the process.

Production quality

Our experienced production team will produce a book you will be proud of. We use UK based copy-editors to ensure our manuscripts are of optimum quality and are finished to the very highest standard. Your Desk Editor will be in close liaison during the processing and production stages, involving you in important decisions such as book cover design.

International dissemination & marketing

We work with academics, booksellers, professionals and libraries around the globe, reaching over 140 countries.

From e-catalogues and conferences to our eBook platform, email campaigns and social media channels, information on your book will be disseminated widely by our international marketing team. Our well-established global reputation will get your book noticed and we will ensure it is readily available across the world.

We recognise the importance of getting your work cited. To maximise visibility our books are included in the Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index and Scopus.

Society partners & international organisations

Edward Elgar Publishing enjoys successful collaboration with a number of society partners including the Asian Development Bank, United Nations International Development Organization and the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law.

Our partners choose us for our reliable and responsible service, the majority publishing with us over many years, benefiting from the continuity of service.

NEW IN PAPERBACK A Modern Guide to Creative Economies

Edited by Roberta Comunian, King's College London, UK, Alessandra Faggian, Gran Sasso Science Institute, Italy, Jarna Heinonen, University of Turku, Finland and Nick Wilson, King's College London, UK

'A Modern Guide to Creative Economies is essential reading for considering and reflecting on how we build healthy, equitable and sustainable conditions for the creation, celebration and exchange of human expression. The book, and its collection of brilliant essays, offers fresh insight that will inspire scholars, students, and leaders in arts and culture to ask new and different questions and ultimately to imagine possibilities for not just growing our creative economies, but also for sustaining the humans who are critical for creative expression to thrive'

NEW IN PAPERBACK A Modern Guide to the Economics of Crime

Edited by Paolo Buonanno, University of Bergamo, Italy, Paolo Vanin, University of Bologna, Italy and Juan Vargas, Universidad del Rosario, Bogotá, Colombia

A Modern Guide to the Economics of Crime discusses the evolution of a field, whose growing relevance among scholars and policymakers is partly related to the persistence of crime and violence around the world and partly to the remarkable progress made in recent years in the economic analysis of individual and organised crime. With contributions from some of the leading scholars in the economics of crime, the volume highlights a variety of topics, conceptual frameworks and empirical approaches, thus providing a comprehensive overview of the most recent developments of the field.

Fixing Prices

A Century of Setting, Posting and Adjusting Retail Prices

Franck Cochoy, University of Toulouse
Jean Jaurès and Institut Universitaire
de France, France, Johan Hagberg,
University of Gothenburg and Hans
Kjellberg, Stockholm School of Economics, Sweden

'Fixing Prices reveals how retail shopping was transformed by the posting of prices through the invention of new techniques and technology. The book delightfully captures how these innovations had to be learned by store owners, sold to customers, and created new and unforeseen opportunities. We now take these innovations for granted but as the authors suggest, they continue in the digital age to evolve in startling ways.'

Elgar Research Agendas

A Research Agenda for Disability and Technology

Edited by Jane Seale, The Open University,
UK

'Technology and disability are vast and dynamic concepts. The internet and world wide web brought huge potentials of digital connectivity and the possibilities – and risks – of digital inclusion and exclusion. We can only imagine how much more would have been achieved, had a cogent Research Agenda been in place, and this is now offered by Seale and colleagues. A vision for multistakeholder collaborations, interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary research is laid out across ten chapters. Concluding with a call for communities of practice, this Research Agenda will stand us in good stead for the future.'

Rethinking Socialism

Compass for a Sustainability Revolution

Klaus Dörre, Friedrich-Schiller-University Jena, Germany

'Rethinking Socialism is a tour de force. As long as we have capitalism there will be visions of socialism; as capitalism transforms itself so the visions change. Klaus Dörre has brought socialism into the 21st century by addressing climate change, digitization and pandemics among other pathologies with concrete utopias aimed at realizing the UN's sustainable development goals. The world desperately needs such brave and innovative thinking.'

Understanding Biosocial Criminology

A Paradigm for the 21st Century

Anthony Walsh, Boise State University, US

'Biosocial criminology represents the future of criminology in that it seeks to understand how we as bio-psycho-social beings interact with our environment (and vice versa). However, there are various subareas of biosocial criminology, such as evolutionary psychology and epigenetics, that makes it difficult for newcomers to understand the relationships between disciplines. This book introduces readers to all areas of biosocial criminology while encouraging readers to recognize how these concepts can be folded into current criminological theories and common criminological findings. Dr. Walsh's command of the material helps readers understand the foundations of biosocial criminology while appreciating the nuances of the topic.'

Digital Media and Grassroots Anti-Corruption

Contexts, Platforms and Data of Anti-Corruption Technologies Worldwide

Edited by Alice Mattoni, University of Bologna, Italy

'Political power and technology may benefit society but are also readily abused. Alice Mattoni looks beyond social media in anti-corruption protests to analyze anti-corruption technology in diverse and rapidly evolving forms. She raises questions regarding transparency, social mobilization, and accountability – and also of the vulnerability of citizens challenging corrupt interests. She shows why we should not be dazzled by technology's reach but also must understand its roles within fundamental dynamics of systemic power.'

How to Think Like a Realist

A Methodology for Social Science

Ray Pawson, University of Leeds, UK

'Realist methodology is blossoming, and realist studies are burgeoning. This is no flash in the pan. Ray Pawson's work is both the product and the source of this intellectual evolution. The book makes the proposition that realist principles underpin science in all its guises and makes tiny, tentative steps in tracing the common realist tenets. If he is correct, we will be reading this manifesto for many years to come.'

Rethinking Neighborhoods

Connections and Cohesion

William A.V. Clark, University of California, Los Angeles, US

'Neighborhoods matter! Drawing on a long career of urban scholarship, this book by Bill Clark provides a fascinating review of the social science on neighborhoods: how they emerge and change, how people sort into them, and why this matters for social mobility, health, general wellbeing, and society as a whole. In the face of concern that work-from-home will reshape urban life, Rethinking Neighborhoods: Connections and Cohesion shows how neighborhoods have and will continue to be an extremely important geography for understanding society.'

The Fate of Social Modernity

Western Europe and Organised Welfare Provision in Challenging Times

Ingo Bode, University of Kassel, Germany

'This highly ambitious monograph is a must read. Viewed through the prism of Europe's reconfigured welfare arrangements, it explores Western European countries' current standing in relation to the Enlightenment-inspired vision of social modernity. Bode's penetrating analysis of the forces (re)shaping contemporary welfare systems raises important questions about the future of welfare and, by extension, the future of the social modernist project itself.'

Implications for Teaching and Learning

Edited by Carol Evans, Cardiff University and Michael Waring, University of Leeds, UK

'Evans and Waring have made a significant contribution by bringing together leading researchers worldwide to present their model of self-regulatory assessment and feedback. The Handbook serves as an empirical basis for elevating self-regulation in higher education and guides educators toward creating a more engaging, empowering, and successful learning experience for their students.'

Handbook of Aid and Development

Edited by Raj M. Desai, Brookings Institution, Shantayanan Devarajan and Jennifer L. Tobin, Georgetown University, Washington, DC, US

'Aid is important in development for two reasons. First it provides additional resources in finance and knowhow to poor countries which, if well used, could aid their development. The key is of course in "if well used." Second, the study of aid and its outcomes can shed light on the development process itself, which could help in the design of development policy in general. Both of these dimensions are present in this excellent volume, with contributions from the leaders in the field. It will take its place among the standard reference volumes in development studies.'

Power, Pain and Professional Cycling

A Historical-Sociological Study

John Connolly, Dublin City University, Ireland

‘Combining a wide array of historical literature from different national traditions and interpreting them from an Eliasian perspective, Connolly’s book makes for refreshing insights into the social basis of Western European professional cycling. Using shame as a central concept, he puts forward an original and nuanced understanding of the makings of the sport’s doping issue.’
