Why publish with Elgar?

A unique publishing experience

As an independent press, Edward Elgar Publishing offers a uniquely responsive service tailored to each project.

From initial commissioning, through to marketing the finished book, our dedicated teams work closely with our authors – whether newly published or well established – to keep them involved and informed.

We are dedicated to reducing the impact of our publishing on the environment and are proud to have signed up to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact. We also work in partnership with organisations such as EIFL and GOALI to enable access to knowledge in developing and transition economy countries.

Your work will be part of a broad, diverse and inclusive list which reflects the wide range of research and perspectives within the subject areas we publish.

In good company

Your book will sit in good company – many of our authors are recognised as leading scholars and professionals in their fields. Numbered amongst them are several Nobel Laureates. Many of our books have won prestigious awards and consistently receive global acclaim for their originality, quality and impact.

Effective and efficient decision-making

We use peer-review by subject specialists to ensure that our research monographs meet a high standard of scholarship. We respond quickly to proposal submissions and aim to complete our assessments within a few weeks of receipt. Your dedicated Commissioning Editor will keep you fully informed throughout the process.

Production quality

Our experienced production team will produce a book you will be proud of. We use UK based copy-editors to ensure our manuscripts are of optimum quality and are finished to the very highest standard. Your Desk Editor will be in close liaison during the processing and production stages, involving you in important decisions such as book cover design.

International dissemination & marketing

We work with academics, booksellers, professionals and libraries around the globe, reaching over 140 countries.

From e-catalogues and conferences to our eBook platform, email campaigns and social media channels, information on your book will be disseminated widely by our international marketing team. Our well-established global reputation will get your book noticed and we will ensure it is readily available across the world.

We recognise the importance of getting your work cited. To maximise visibility our books are included in the Thomson Reuters' Book Citation Index and Scopus.

Society partners & international organisations

Edward Elgar Publishing enjoys successful collaboration with a number of society partners including the Asian Development Bank, United Nations International Development Organization and the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law.

Our partners choose us for our reliable and responsible service, the majority publishing with us over many years, benefiting from the continuity of service.

A Modern Guide to Creative Economies

Edited by Roberta Comunian, King's College London, UK, Alessandra Faggian, Gran Sasso Science Institute, Italy, Jarna Heinonen, University of Turku, Finland and Nick Wilson, King's College London, UK

'A Modern Guide to Creative Economies is essential reading for considering and reflecting on how we build healthy, equitable and sustainable conditions for the creation, celebration and exchange of human expression. The book, and its collection of brilliant essays, offers fresh insight that will inspire scholars, students, and leaders in arts and culture to ask new and different questions and ultimately to imagine possibilities for not just growing our creative economies, but also for sustaining the humans who are critical for creative expression to thrive'

Handbook on Shrinking Cities

Edited by Karina Pallagst, Technische Universität Kaiserslautern, Germany, Marco Bontje, University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Emmanuèle Cunningham Sabot, Ecole Normale Supérieure (ENS), Paris, France and René Fleschurz, Technische Universität Kaiserslautern, Germany

'Our cities represent very comprehensive social ecosystems – a mosaic consisting of diverse structures interlinked by the veins of infrastructure shaped by multiple actions of various actors. The Handbook on Shrinking Cities edited by Karina Pallagst, Marco Bontje, Emmanuelle Cunningham-Sabot and Rene Fleschurz presents a similar picture. This is a book in which the synergy between chapters written by numerous authors creates a multi-faceted picture of shrinking cities and which will be of interest to a wide range of readers.'

Megaprojects for Megacities

A Comparative Casebook

Edited by John D. Landis, University of Pennsylvania, US

Megaprojects for Megacities is a collection of 14 international case studies of transportation, urban development, and environmental megaprojects completed during the last ten years in North America, Asia and Europe. It goes beyond the previous megaproject literature to look at how and why each project was conceived, planned, engineered, financed, and delivered, and at how particular planning and delivery practices shaped outcomes.

Strategy for Sustainability Transitions

Governance, Community and Environment

Kristof Van Assche, University of Alberta, Canada, Raoul Beunen, Open University, the Netherlands and Monica Gruezmacher, University of Alberta, Canada

'This excellent volume examines a key question of our time – the possibility of sustainability transitions – through an evolutionary governance lens. In addition to exploring how climate change, biodiversity and energy crises, water and food scarcity require societal transitions, it keeps a firm eye focused on the lessons that have been learned about why societal transitions occur (or not) and especially on the role played in these processes by governing institutions writ large. Drawing on earlier work by the authors and others in the field, the book introduces and applies the idea of a "governance path" in assessing how likely any sustainability transition might be and in what directions any such transition is likely to go. Concluding with a discussion of the interplay between governance and policy strategies, the book highlights the need for both good governance and good strategies if any kind of successful transition is to occur.'

Spatial Planning Systems in Europe

Comparison and Trajectories

Edited by Vincent Nadin, Delft University of Technology, the Netherlands, Giancarlo Cotella, Politecnico di Torino, Italy and Peter Schmitt, Stockholm University, Sweden

'Incisive, insightful, and indisputably the most current and comprehensive treatise on spatial planning on the European continent. Written by a team of Europe's leading planning scholars, the book does much more than characterize and contrast some 250 planning instruments and 31 planning structures in the European Union, but brings clarity to the nuanced concepts of territorial cohesion, balanced development, subsidiarity and indeed the distinctive meaning of the term spatial planning itself. . . . The book is a must read for students of planning systems all over the globe and especially for those who seek to understand, or strive to meet, the spatial complexities of the European experiment.'

Rethinking Neighborhoods

Connections and Cohesion

William A.V. Clark, University of California, Los Angeles, US

'Neighborhoods matter! Drawing on a long career of urban scholarship, this book by Bill Clark provides a fascinating review of the social science on neighborhoods: how they emerge and change, how people sort into them, and why this matters for social mobility, health, general wellbeing, and society as a whole. In the face of concern that work-from-home will reshape urban life, Rethinking Neighborhoods: Connections and Cohesion shows how neighborhoods have and will continue to be an extremely important geography for understanding society.'
