The Political Economy of Iraq

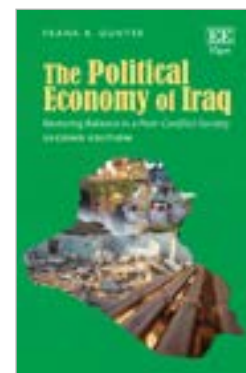

Restoring Balance in a Post-Conflict Society

2nd edition

Frank R. Gunter, Lehigh University, US, Iraq Britain Business Council and U.S. Marines (Retired)

'This most thoughtful treatise is another example of Frank Gunter's intellectual discipline and fine analytical mind, writing on Iraq, a country he has studied for many years. He combines objective and informed narrative with a comprehensive understanding of the challenges facing the country, but underlying the whole work is a care and concern for the future wellbeing of the country, one which he and I both respect and honour.'

The Debt Crisis of the 1980s

Law and Political Economy

Jérôme Sgard, Sciences Po, Paris, France

'This exquisitely timed and important book returns a twice-lost decade to its rightful place in sovereign debt theory and practice. An urge to forget for some combined with endless casual mentions to drain the 1980s of color and meaning in contemporary imagination. In place of generic cutouts of systemic crisis, deadweight loss, oppression, and financial alchemy, Jérôme Sgard offers an original account of institutional ferment, creative agency, and fraught politics at the root of international financial architecture.'

Research Handbook on City and Municipal Finance

Edited by Craig L. Johnson, Indiana University, Bloomington, Temirlan T. Moldogaziev, The Pennsylvania State University and Justin M. Ross, Indiana University, Bloomington, US

'This book is a very engaging and informative compilation of research in municipal finance topics. It will serve as a good reference for young scholars just embarking on a research career, as well as more experienced researchers and practitioners looking for summaries of the more important research on a topic. I especially enjoyed the inclusion of relatively new areas of research such as the effects of COVID-19 on fiscal health, the role of cybersecurity in financial risk, and the role of public health spending. I thoroughly enjoyed reading the book and will use it as a reference for years to come.'

How to Engage Policy Makers with Your Research

The Art of Informing and Impacting Policy

Edited by Tim Vorley, Syahirah Abdul Rahman and Lauren Tuckerman, Oxford Brookes University, UK and Phil Wallace, University of Manchester, UK

'There is a growing interest in improving academic policy engagement in the UK and internationally. However, we still have a lot to learn about how to do this work better. This book provides a novel contribution, with authors drawn from UK government, parliament, research funders and academia. It focuses on three key areas: how academics articulate the value and relevance of research to policy, the different ways in which academic-policy engagement occur and how research impacts upon policy. The contributors bring a vast amount of experience to bear on these topics and as such help to move forward our thinking on how academic-policy engagement might help to promote the use of research to support policy making.'

A Modern Guide to Networks

Edited by Robyn Keast, Southern Cross University, Australia, Joris Voets, Ghent University, Belgium, Jack Wayne Meek, University of La Verne, US and Christine Flynn, Connexity Associates Pty Ltd, Australia

'In this volume, Robyn Keast, Joris Voets, Jack Meek, Christine Flynn and their co-authors highlight an important feature of contemporary social networks that are convened to pursue collective actions for the public good: that all social networks boil down to relationships between people and between people and things (e.g., organizations, infrastructure). By elevating the importance of relationship, they necessarily define the essence of a network as a set of practices that have, as they note, been an essential, if not the essential feature of human civilization, and certainly core to the practice of public administration since the dawn of organized and intentional collective action. The chapters in this volume examine contemporary cases through a focus on relationships and underscore that networks can, when fostered with integrity, emotional and cultural intelligence, and deep concerns for public value and public values, enhance the resilience of communities and whole societies. This is an important contribution to the fields of network governance and management because it demonstrates the importance of reflective practice to the craft of network cultivation.'

Building the Post-Pandemic University

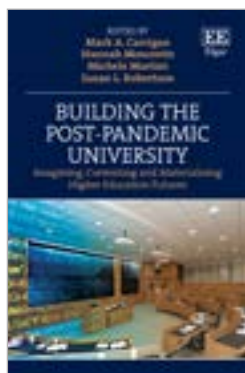

Imagining, Contesting and Materializing Higher Education Futures

Edited by Mark A. Carrigan, University of Manchester, UK, Hannah Moscovitz, Aarhus University, Denmark, Michele Martini, University of Lugano, Switzerland and Susan L. Robertson, University of Cambridge, UK

'This book is as important as it is timely. For higher education sectors to move forwards – and take their workforces along with them – the contours and legacies of the pandemic need to be much better understood. The contributors to this sensitively curated volume bring insight and evidence about what really happened to higher learning during Covid. The collection is more than the sum of its chapters; it goes beyond critique to offer a shared blueprint for what might come next. The neoliberal university embraces individualism and entrepreneurialism in the name of competition; this collection prompts us to advocate for a new settlement based on fairer and more humane values.'

Ethical Leadership

A Primer: Second Edition

2nd edition

Edited by Robert M. McManus, Muskingum University, Stanley J. Ward, Influence Coaching LLC and Alexandra K. Perry, OhioHealth and Marietta College, US

The world cries out for ethical leaders. We expect the best, but we are often left profoundly disappointed. While leadership programs may feature ethics as part of their curriculum, the approach is often either simplistic or overly-esoteric. This second edition addresses this scarcity of resources for training ethical leaders, providing a primer of several ethical frameworks accompanied by extended examples to help inform decision-making. It also addresses several leadership models that claim an ethical component. The new edition also includes new chapters on the ethics of care and toxic leadership, and new case studies for all chapters. By providing a consistent case analysis based on the Five Components of Leadership Model, readers benefit from a comprehensive approach to understanding ethical leadership.

Social Justice in a Turbulent Era

Edited by Gary Craig, University of Newcastle upon Tyne, UK

'Invaluable and timely research exposing the global drift of authoritarian politics of austerity, greed and hate by re-engaging with the social justice values of fairness, equality and inclusion to inform centrist and alternative left-of-centre strategies. The globally-sourced case studies analyse the continuing crises of economic neoliberalism, embedded racism and entrenched poverty which have been exacerbated by Covid-19 and climate change. Edited by Andreas Østhagen, Fridtjof Nansen Institute, Nord University Business School, Oslo New University College, Norway and The Arctic Institute

'As this timely book explains, Norway is required by geography to cooperate with Russia while knowing that Russian military forces pose an existential threat. That delicate balance, between cooperation and conflict, is key to understanding the political and security dynamics of the Arctic as a whole.'

Republican Global Constitutionalism

The Failure of Global Governance and the Power of Citizens

Steven Slaughter, Deakin University, Australia

'Steven Slaughter offers a compelling argument for seeking a middle path to a better international politics. It is a path that aims to avoid what he sees as the too-totalizing control of a full world government, and the ineffectiveness of most attempts at robust global governance. His alternative, Republican Global Constitutionalism, emphasizes the evolution of treaty-based, constitution-like governance in some aspects of international politics, and especially the roles that an active "global citizenry" could play in advancing and transforming global cooperation. This book is highly recommended for those seeking a sophisticated but accessible entry into dialogues on the transformation and/or surpassing of the liberal international order.'

Referendum Authorization Procedures in Europe

A Comparative Analysis

Anna Forgács, University of Zürich, Switzerland

"Direct democracy can only fulfill the promise of enhanced civic engagement and genuine democratic will-formation, if the direct-democratic instruments are well-constructed." Anna Forgács brilliantly demonstrates this core truth about direct democratic mechanisms by focusing on referendum authorization procedures in a mindfully selected number of European states. The book fills a void and is bound to become a cornerstone of studies on the design and legal limits of direct democracy.'

Reforms that Stick

The Politics of Preservation

Joannah Luetjens, Advocacy for Inclusion, Canberra, Australia

'Reforms that Stick is a splendid book. Leveraging well-researched case studies of key policy areas and systematic empirical analysis, Joannah Luetjens generates fresh insights into the conditions associated with reform endurance, consolidation, and erosion in parliamentary democracies. By exploring the interactions among political parties, administrative actors, interest groups, and mass publics, the book helps us better understand why some reforms last and why others unravel after the moment of enactment. Essential reading for scholars and practitioners of public policy.'

Successful Public Governance series

Global Institutions in a Time of Power Transition

Governing Turbulence

Edited by Kendall Stiles, Brigham Young University and Joel E. Oestreich, Drexel University, US

'The book usefully brings together analysis of shifting power in the global arena with the response by international civil servants in the UN System. Through linking the external power and internal management dynamics, notable insights are provided from comparison across a diverse set of countries, issue areas, and organizations.'

The ACUNS Series on the UN System

Beyond 'Ever Closer Union'

The Juncker Commission's Ambition in Migration and Economic Policy

Jakov Bojović, European University Institute, Italy and a professional trainer in public policy communications

'Bojović's work on the Juncker Commission is a great piece of research, which flags the centrality of supranational institutions for new intergovernmentalist scholarship. The book shows how Juncker sought to combine political ambition and complicity with intergovernmental institutions, experiencing both success and failure of Commission leadership.'

New Horizons in European Politics series

Unintended Consequences and the Social Sciences

An Intellectual History

Lorenzo Infantino, LUISS Guido Carli, Rome, Italy

'A learned journey through the challenges of understanding unintended consequences in European thought. From antiquity to modernity, unintended consequences have been morphed into intentions of either magical forces, deities, or some form of supreme rationality. Infantino eruditely walks us through how we eventually arrived at a genuine understanding of unintentionality.'

New Thinking in Political Economy series

(Mis)managing Macprudential Expectations

How Central Banks Govern Financial and Climate Tail Risks

John Hogan Morris, University of Nottingham and Hannah Collins, University of Reading, UK

'Morris and Collins' ground-breaking book reveals the dangers of the Bank of England's efforts to govern climate change by calculating tail risks. As market actors find new ways of profiting from these climate tail risks, they warn, it is the most vulnerable populations that will pay the price.'
